Business description: Manufacturer of plastic tiling trims and related products

HOMELUX NENPLAS

Deal Type: MBO

Sector: Specialist Manufacturing

Homelux is a leading developer, manufacturer and distributor of extruded and injection moulded home DIY and building products together with associated tooling and other accessories. The company's manufacturing and administrative facilities are based in Ashbourne in Derbyshire and the company employs approximately 120 members of staff.

Approximately two thirds of the company's turnover is attributed to the supply of plastic and metallic trims, profiles and other products associated with ceramic tiles. The company is an established supplier to all the major DIY and domestic tile retailers in the UK and has growing markets in the USA and the EU. The company differentiates itself in the market place by offering innovative designs and styles supported by a strong product development function.

A third of the business is engaged in the supply of plastic moulded products for the building trade and to other manufacturing sectors. This division operates under the Nenplas brand. These products include render beading to the building trade and a range of plastic trims, seals and edges used in the manufacture of caravans, windows, shop fittings and other furniture.

Aberdeen Asset Managers Growth Capital supported the management buyout of Homelux in May 2006 investing approximately £2.5 million.
